Groups Petition State to Protect Kauai's Most Polluted Stream

Waiopili Stream pollution levels spike to 275 times higher than State and Federal bacteria limits

Kaua'i, HI—May 8, 2015—Friends of Maha'ulepu and Surfrider Foundation Kauai Chapter have jointly filed a Petition with the Hawaii State Department of Health (DOH) asking it to list Waiopili Stream in the Maha'ulepu Valley as an Impaired Water of the State. The petition also seeks to have appropriate signs posted immediately to warn the public of the health risks. The full text of the groups' Petition can be found on their websites at: friendsofmahaulepu.org and Kauai.surfrider.org.

Surfrider Foundation has engaged in regular water quality testing in partnership with DOH. Over the past year, the Waiopili Stream test results have shown average pollution levels that are 275 times higher than the State's bacteria limits. Test results from the nearby ocean beach waters have also revealed extensive contamination with pollution levels at nearly 17 times greater than State limits- from samples taken after the stream waters have mixed with sea water.

"Surfrider is concerned about each of the four streams on Kaua'i – Waiopili, Waikomo, Hanamaulu and Nawiliwili – that are polluted nearly 100% of the time," said Carl Berg, Ph.D., chair of the Kauai Chapter of Surfrider Foundation. "We chose to join Friends of Maha'ulepu with a petition to list and post warning signs at the Waiopili Stream because it is the most polluted stream on Kauai and poses a serious threat to human health. We do believe that the DOH should also place warning signs at each of the other three streams on Kauai with chronically high bacteria counts."

Private and public land owners Grove Farm and the County of Kauai have been informed of the excessive bacterial contamination of the waters on their properties. To date, they have failed to post warning signs. This, despite the fact that residents and visitors – regardless of the source of the waste – currently swim in waters contaminated by fecal material.

"We need to protect our waters from extreme pollution and the public has a right to know of the danger," says president of Friends of Maha'ulepu, Bridget Hammerquist, who was born in Hawaii and raised with her family at Kaunakani. "Grove Farm and the County of Kauai know there is a serious public health risk and that something has to be done to clean it up. It is only pono to warn people of the contamination by posting signs and listing streams, as has been done on the Hanalei River."

Friends of Maha'ulepu is a group of concerned citizens (local and beyond) who are contributing their time and talents to protect the natural beauty of Kauai's Maha'ulepu Valley. For more about Friends of Maha'ulepu, please go to www.friendsofmahaulepu.org.
